How is the future of this STS formation envisioned?

This map marks the countries from which Institute for Science and Society (ISS) staff and postgraduate students have arrived and to which they have moved on. In an effort to avoid exclusion, we have focused on countries rather than more specific locations; inevitably it is impossible to include everyone, and the origin and destination stories of individual ISS members often involve more than one origin and destination! Rather than detailing individual journeys, this map provides an overview of the networks and diaspora of those previously or currently affiliated with ISS. Our map captures past, present and future in the origin and destination of ISS members: diasporas that will continue to link diverse people with diverse ideas across diverse places.

Institute for Science and Society Diasporas
STS@NottmDiasporas:
Openness as Ethos and as Topic