What events have marked the development of this STS formation?

The weekly interdisciplinary Institute for Science and Society (ISS) Seminar Series ran during term time from 2001-2015, organised by ISS students and staff. It brought a broad range of internal and external guest speakers into conversation with ISS and many other audience members from across the University of Nottingham - and sometimes beyond. Openness to new spaces also characterised the Seminar Series, as each term's programme included a visit (or 'field trip') to a site of interest to STS and wider audiences (for example, a nearby dairy farm employing robotic milking).