

Srishti Sood - Wishlist 2072

make a long list of topics, issues, questions and places that you hope to research over the next 50 years

1. Environment inaction, or why we get stuck with bad decisions or bad decision makers
2. Creative and collaborative projects in the environmental humanities
3. Sustain curiosity, community, and humility
4. Long term histories of connection through movements of plants, peoples, places, etc.
5. Learning across difference
6. Collaborate with scientists working on shared ecological dilemmas
7. New stories from old archives
8. Lend your skills
9. Occupational safety and health outcomes
10. How are bodies interpolated with their environments?
11. Intellectual histories of modern sciences
12. Serious play
13. Hone media-making skills
14. Advocate for equity in education – more equal starting line
15. Be able to explain my research to parents and grandparents
16. Mentor students and appreciate multiple forms of intelligences
17. Put up exhibits and workshops
18. Embodiment
19. Rest
20. Resist hypermasculinity in the sciences
21. How do people's construal of histories affect their presents
22. Generational legacies of environmental harm